WHAT IS PROCESS ARCHITECTURE?

Process Architecture is the integration of processing equipment and operations into a fully functional manufacturing environment. Key considerations in the development of this integration include personnel safety, human ergonomics, compliance with applicable codes and guidelines, as well as lean and efficient manufacturing operations.

WHAT IS THE PLUS?

The Plus is centered on “taking the extra step”.

The Plus includes:

- more comprehensive concept designs and master plans
- more developed equipment arrangements in rooms
- three dimensional models for customers who can also review in augmented reality

This may include the review of preliminary utility loads imposed on the facility infrastructure as compared to available capacity. Careful consideration can also be taken to determine the most efficient use of energy when recommending equipment and system selections.
